

Sustainability & The Built Environment

Professional Seminar

Seminar Summary

With Trinidad and Tobago's signing of the Accord de Paris on 22nd April of 2016, subsequent to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC), both Corporate and Individual responsibilities for dealing with greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions mitigation and adaptation have grown to enormity. Our actions not only affect our cost of living but now lean on the quality of life we enjoy.

Where we are now positioned; corporate entities form part of the first line of defense in combatting carbon emissions and workplace dissonance.

This Professional Seminar has been designed to provide the knowledge required to foster individual and corporate change that will ultimately improve quality of life and workplace productivity while reducing operational costs through sustainable practices. Here, the highest global ideals of responsible, efficient practices bolster organizations' public image while saving on operational overheads.
